vro2split.rar go2vro2splitter.net vro2splitter.net A: Your ZIP archive isn't actually a ZIP archive. You can see this when you uncompress it using 7-Zip. It's just a single file, called file.exe, with the contents of the archive in it. (You can't see this in Notepad because the archive header information isn't displayed there.) If you can't see the zip header information in Notepad then you have no way of knowing if you're actually decompressing a ZIP archive. It could just be the contents of a single file, or it could be the contents of a single file which happens to have the extension.zip. You need to figure out whether you've actually decompressed a zip archive, and if so, what you want to do with the resulting decompressed file. For example, if you know that the archive is a zip archive containing a directory, you can try this (assuming PowerShell): `Get-ChildItem -Path $(Read-Host -Prompt "Enter path to decompressed file") -Filter *.rar | %{ unrar x $_.FullName -o$Path$_Name }` If you've extracted the archive with 7-Zip or something similar, you can try opening the resulting decompressed file like a zip file instead of a normal file. That might be what you want. If you can't figure out what you want to do with the decompressed file, post an image of it to image sharing website and we can see whether it's a zip archive or something else.
